

In 1990 an idea spawned to form a tribute band to pay homage to legendary American icons who had formed a music style and sound all their own and left a permanent mark on music history. "Aerosmith"..

Cincinnati, OH. A well-known gentleman in the music business, named Rudi Szlavi, who brain-stormed the idea spent several months of searching and auditioning musicians throughout the Northeast and Midwest. A single lead vocalist was found in Upstate New York with a shocking resemblance to Steven Tyler. Not only did he physically resemble the performer, but his singing voice merited the same screaming demons of Tyler himself. This was incredible to see and hear.

Under a year of guidance and management of Rudi Szlavi, where the band of New Yorkers and Ohioans gigged to test the waters, they decided to dedicate their name in honor of Aerosmith's 1975 Platinum-selling album, "TOY'S IN THE ATTIC". And, thus, they began a long history of their own, travelling around the United States and Canada: performing in thousands of clubs and concert venues proving to be the most incredible show band of its kind, entertaining crowds of Aerosmith fans & audiences around the country.

The show is all Aerosmith from beginning to end. The band looks AND sounds like the famous rock legends. The lead vocalist looks so much like Steven Tyler, it's scary. See and hear the true raw sounds of Aerosmith as "TOY'S IN THE ATTIC" performs the band's biggest hits of all time.
